

Secondhand Souls

by Christopher Moore

About the Book

In San Francisco, the souls of the dead are mysteriously disappearing --- and you know that can't be good --- in New York Times bestselling author Christopher Moore's delightfully funny sequel to A DIRTY JOB.

Something really strange is happening in the City by the Bay. People are dying, but their souls are not being collected. Someone --- or something --- is stealing them and no one knows where they are going, or why, but it has something to do with that big orange bridge. Death Merchant Charlie Asher is just as flummoxed as everyone else. He's trapped in the body of a 14-inch-tall "meat puppet" waiting for his Buddhist nun girlfriend, Audrey, to find him a suitable new body to play host.

To get to the bottom of this abomination, a motley crew of heroes will band together: the seven-foot-tall death merchant Minty Fresh; retired policeman turned bookseller Alphonse Rivera; the Emperor of San Francisco and his dogs, Bummer and Lazarus; and Lily, the former Goth girl. Now if only they can get little Sophie to stop babbling about the coming battle for the very soul of humankind.

Discussion Guide

1. Christopher Moore uses humor to tackle death, violence, suicide, the afterlife, religion, parenting and partnership. Why is it effective?
2. Does the lighthearted tone of SECONDHAND SOULS distract from some of the serious content or draw attention to it?
3. Discuss Moore's use of religion and folklore. He draws heavily from Buddhism, not only in crafting Audrey's character but in having her explain the metaphysics of the novel. He also brings in characters from ancient Egyptian and Celtic belief systems. Do you find this to be a surprising mix? Was it successful?

4. Moore has created a diverse cast of characters. Who did you like the most, and who was the most frustrating to you? Which did you want to know more about? Which could you imagine spending time with and why?

5. What motivates the main characters like Charlie, Audrey, Minty, Lily and Rivera? Is it a sense of duty? Adventure? Something else? Why take on such dangerous tasks, or were they left no choice?

6. Consider the character of Mike Sullivan: What are his motivations for suicide? Do his actions make sense? As a "beta male," how is he similar to Charlie Asher?

7. In putting souls into her creations, the Squirrel People, did Audrey remind you of Mary Shelley's Dr. Frankenstein? What do you think her responsibility was to her animated creatures? Were you surprised they rebelled against her?

8. Why was it so important for Lily to be special or have a gift like the other main characters? How would specialness benefit her? When she discovers that she is the only one who can communicate with the ghosts on the bridge, does it change her at all?

9. SECONDHAND SOULS has some unique romances: Minty Fresh and Lily; Charlie and Audrey; Mike Sullivan and Concepcion. Which was most compelling and why? Which relationship was the most romantic, and which challenged the typical understanding of romance or love?

10. How, according to the novel, is love able to transcend death and physicality? Think of the relationships of Charlie and Audrey, and Mike Sullivan and Concepcion, for example. Is this transcendence perhaps Moore's larger point? Or do you think that the setup is just a vehicle for humor? Is there any real connection here between body and soul?

11. Discuss the novel's ending. How does the idea of ghosts pausing on bridges support the view of the universe that the book lays out? Why do you think that bridges, according to the story, are the gathering places of ghosts? Does Moore distinguish between ghosts and souls? If so, how?

12. Many of the Death Merchants in the novel work as actual merchants, selling things like music and books. Why do you think that is?

13. SECONDHAND SOULS is a sequel to A DIRTY JOB. Did you find that the first book was necessary to enjoying and following the second? Or would SECONDHAND SOULS work as a stand-alone novel?

14. SECONDHAND SOULS might be described as a comedy about death, but there is much more to it. How would you explain the book to someone who hasn't read it? What type of reader would you recommend it to and why?

Author Bio

Christopher Moore is the author of numerous novels, including the international bestsellers LAMB, A DIRTY JOB and

YOU SUCK.

Chris was born in Toledo, Ohio and grew up in Mansfield, Ohio. His father was a highway patrolman and his mother sold major appliances at a department store. He attended Ohio State University and Brooks Institute of Photography in Santa Barbara. He moved to California when he was 19 years old and lived on the Central Coast until 2003, when he moved to Hawaii.

Before publishing his first novel, PRACTICAL DEMONKEEPING, in 1992, he worked as a roofer, a grocery clerk, a hotel night auditor, and insurance broker, a waiter, a photographer, and a rock and roll DJ. Chris has drawn on all of these work experiences to create the characters in his books. When he's not writing, Chris enjoys ocean kayaking, scuba diving, photography, and painting with acrylics and oils. He lives in San Francisco.

Secondhand Souls

by Christopher Moore

Publication Date: May 10, 2016

Genres: Fiction, Humor, Mystery

Paperback: 368 pages

Publisher: William Morrow Paperbacks

ISBN-10: 0061779792

ISBN-13: 9780061779794